

WEEKLY TELEVISION GUIDE

Daddy wanted to be around young people and enjoyed the students Mother was teaching. He loved everyone but will always remember two special girls who were twins (I'll call them Linda and Lucy). Daddy said he could never remember what day their lessons were but quickly found out in the evening when he opened the new TV Guide to see what was on television only to find his TV Guide had been all marked up in red and blue ink. It seems that while Linda was taking her piano lesson, Lucy sat in Daddy's lounge chair and circled every program she thought he would enjoy watching. Thirty minutes later while Lucy was taking her lesson, Linda took her turn looking through and marking up the TV Guide. It was not uncommon for each to say, "You know Mr. Eppes would not like to watch that program," and one sister would mark out what the other had circled. This practice of marking up Daddy's TV Guide continued until the girls graduated from high school. To this day, he misses those precious red and blue ink marks on his TV Guide.